Home Improvements: A Contractor You Can Bring Home To Mom

Residential renovations represent a twenty-one billion dollar a year industry in Canada, yet still there is an unprecedented amount of ambiguity surrounding the process of undertaking a home renovation project. As of late with our economy in turmoil, a New Breed of contractors is emerging who are learning how to leverage this changing landscape.

"Now more than ever, as the economy struggles to stay above board, homeowners want to make sure their investments are secure." said Bobby Assadourian, co author of the book. "A home is typically the most valuable investment people own and home owners need to stay current to ensure that the "professionals" that they hire have their best interests at heart."

The book "A Contractor You Can Bring Home to Mom" is designed to assist homeowners in staying current with the rules, regulations and contractors who service this ever-changing market. The book provides a unique and invaluable perspective combined with new home renovation tricks straight from the trades!

The book is co authored by award winning Young Entrepreneur of the Year Trevor Bouchard and renowned home renovation specialist and columnist Bobby Assadourian.
